Wickes REPLACEMENT WINDOWS

Rot-proof, corrosion-resistant and maintenance-free

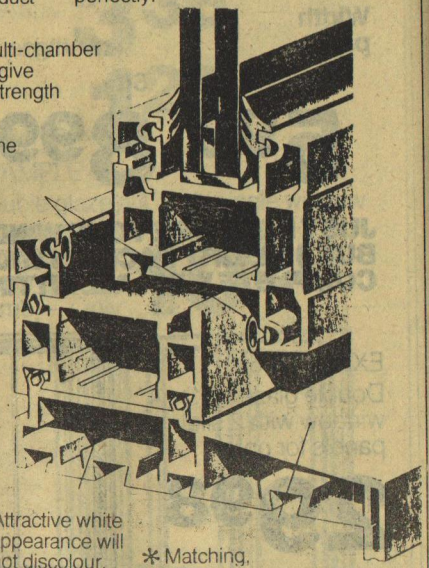
Wickes windows have sealed-unit double glazing as standard. What's more, the cavity-width is double that offered by some manufacturers. So heat loss is reduced dramatically. But there's much more than superb double-glazing to a Wickes window. Even the frame was designed to keep the heat in.

UPVC is a very efficient thermal insulator. And the frame of the Wickes window is a multi-cavity construction, with air chambers which increase the degree of insulation even further. So, unlike aluminium window frames, Wickes frames won't form a 'cold bridge' — that is, they won't conduct low outside temperatures into the room. And that means they also overcome the other major disadvantage of aluminium windows — condensation on the frame.

Wickes windows fit better, too, to give you total draught-sealing and water-proofing. For a start, there are the cushioned neoprene seals — two for every opening window — which make absolutely certain that even gale-force winds and torrential rain are kept out. Then, there's the fact that a single handle locates each opening window against the frame at three separate points — to make sure that it fits perfectly.

NEW

* Robust, multi-chamber extrusions give immense strength and rigidity
* All glass is fitted from the inside, for maximum security.
* Impact-resistant frame will not crack, split or become brittle.
* UPVC is a self-extinguishing material. So the fire risk is far less than with windows containing timber.
* Two cushioned, neoprene seals eliminate draughts and water penetration.
* No painting or maintenance necessary. Just wipe down occasionally with a mild detergent solution.
* Attractive white appearance will not discolour.
* Matching, maintenance-free sill



With this kind of thermal protection, the saving on fuel bills can be dramatic and — in these days of escalating prices — that's an advantage that will increase year-by-year. There'll be a dramatic reduction in the noise that filters through from outside, too. Because the very same properties that make Wickes windows weatherproof also reduce traffic noise to nothing more than a distant murmur.

Wickes UPVC window frames are impact-resistant, resilient and non-porous — so they won't crack, split, shatter, warp, rot, rust or corrode. They are resistant to common household chemicals and air-borne corrosives, such as Sulphur Dioxide. They are colour-fast, — so they keep their looks. they are not susceptible to fungus or insect attack. They never need painting. And they are truly maintenance free, because they don't have a timber sub-frame or sill.

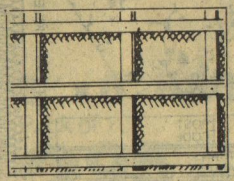
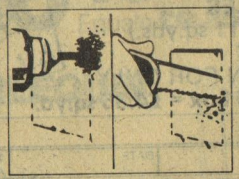
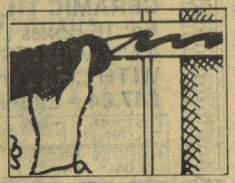
HOW TO APPLY WALL PANELS



Apply furring strips, 1" x 2" or 1" x 3" vertically at 16" centres for 8′ x 4′ and horizontally for random width panelling. The first panel should fit snugly into a corner.

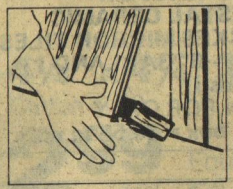


To make holes for switches etc., trace the box outline onto the panel, drill holes in the corners of the area and cut between the holes with a keyhole saw.



Make sure that the panel will fit, then apply adhesive to the furring strips.

Press the panel into position, then hammer nails through the top of the panel.



Pull out the bottom of the panel and keep it 8—10" away from the wall until adhesive becomes tacky. Approximately 8—10 minutes.

Press the panel back into position. Hammer gently to spread adhesive. remove nails when dry.

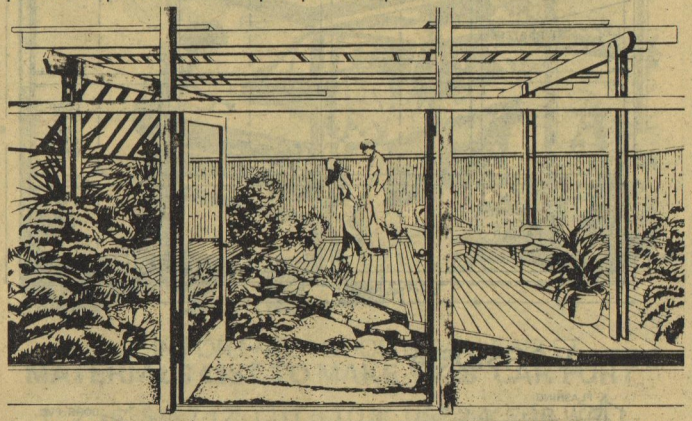
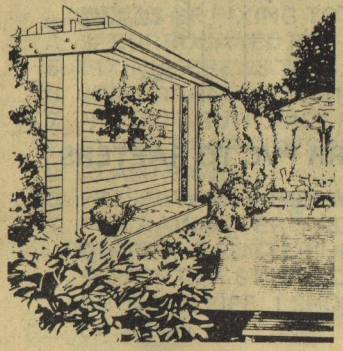
BUILD YOURSELF A PATIO

3 Ideas for small gardens

Townhouse garden, once a 20 by 25ft patch of bare soil, is now a pleasant place for both people and plants.



Boldly designed garden bench became both focal point and privacy screen when this garden was re-modelled to include a wood deck off the living room.



This brick patio is one step down from a raised deck in this narrow but deep city garden. The change in levels, plus different surfacing materials and a profusion of container plants, helps divide the space.
